"When I discovered TRAIN national, I signed up immediately to access online training from around the country. The competency assessment and search functions are valuable tools to direct my focus on what to take, and then find it. It opens up a wealth of training resources!"

- Emily Wilson, Bureau of Preparedness and Response

"The beauty of TRAIN is that it contains learning opportunities based on public health competencies at a variety of levels. You can select courses to enhance your skills in your current position or build skills for a different position. It's a great way to create your individual development plan and your work is portable to any member in the TRAIN collaborative. Another plus is that many of the courses have continuing education credits to support licensures and certifications."

- Nancy J. Mills, MPA, Office of Performance and Quality Improvement
